

Welcome ... and thank you for joining in the rich history that is Graceland. Chef Campbell and the Mingo Room staff are honored to share this special dining experience with you.

Graceland was built in the 1890's, a lavish time when life was both gentle and grand in the hills of West Virginia. Designed as a summer home for family and friends, this gracious retreat continues to be a favorite summer place, with long shady days, cool mountain breezes, and life on the veranda "as it should be." Please sit back, relax and enjoy a taste of a time gone by.

We hope you will return time and time again to make this one of your special spots in West Virginia.

The train logo signifies the menu items which have a train history related to Graceland. A young Henry Gassaway Davis served as a brake man in Maryland and then came to West Virginia and began the West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway which harvested lumber and coal here in the hills. Through West Virginia, the train influence was key to travel, cuisine and industry. Many towns throughout West Virginia are named for Henry Gassaway Davis and other train affiliated names.
